Have you ever sat in a class thinking:

"I could do this better"?

Ever wondered what it would be like to be a teacher, making a transformative impact?

If you've ever thought about becoming a teacher — or just want to explore what it means to lead and inspire — join us for the Adrien Nyel Summer Institute in Washington, D.C.

This five-day experience will connect you with passionate educators, give you hands-on insight into the work of teaching, and help you discover how you can make a difference in the lives of future generations.

MISSION & VISION

The Adrien Nyel Institute seeks to inspire more high school students to take on the mantle of becoming teachers to future generations.

We aim to cultivate a new generation of faith-filled educators who will transform lives and create a more just, compassionate world through teaching.

“We believe that another world is possible, and that education is a fundamental force for building it.”

Declaration on the Lasallian Educational Mission (2020, p 122)

“The need for good, qualified, and inspired teachers in Catholic schools remains great.”

- Br. Robert Schaefer, FSC

ABOUT

The Adrien Nyel Project is an initiative of the Lasallian District of North America to accompany current teachers and encourage young people to consider the call to teach.

The Project is informed and shaped by the 346-year old Lasallian educational charism and heritage that is characterized by a living faith, a trust in God’s providence, a recognition of God’s holy presence in daily life, a belief in the dignity of all persons, a zeal to participate in God’s saving work through education and spiritual formation, a preferential option for and solidarity with those who are impoverished and marginalized, and a commitment to generate opportunities to transform lives and create a more fraternal and equitable world.
